Furthermore, Turkey has adopted the project of direct military interference in Libya, by sending military forces to support the (LNAG) led by Fayeze al-Sarraj, which was formed with the support of the United Nations for the purpose to confront threats by the National Army of Libya under the leadership of retired General Commander Khalifa Haftar. Besides that the draft to send Turkish forces came after the approval of the Turkish Parliament on this in order to understand the most important motives and reasons that led the Turkish government to interfere military in the Libyan affair, will be presented in the context of the following topic<sup>(1)</sup>.

I.I. Advantage of Turkish Interference in Libya.

The most significant causes and factors that motivated Turkiye administration to take serious steps in Libya for example direct military interference in Libiyay affair.

Due there were political, economic and strategy motives have taken into account by the decision-maker in Turkey.

I.I.1. Turkish Economic Ambitions

It is worth noting that, qil was on the agendas of Turkish decision maker to involve in Libya, in order to get on gains, especially, as Turkey pursues to reach the largest amount of huge reserves of natural gas in the eastern Mediterranean basin;<sup>(1)</sup> However, the main goal is that Turkey was trying to make a compensation advantage of the neighboring countries in the Mediterranean and under the division of gas exploration and extraction areas. In this regards, Turkey has reached the agreement signed with the Tripoli government in 2019. This was announced by the he Turkey's energy minister, Faith Donmez.

He added also, "Turkish Petroleum (TPAO) had applied for exploration permits in the eastern Mediterranean and would start operating in the areas under its licence once the process was completed".

As, Turkey has faced challenge by European countries regarding the arena of exploration. However, Turkey finds that it is obliged to reach an agreement with government of Fayez al-Sarraj in Tripoli, regarding the talks that hapened on the coastal basin of the Mediterranean, and at the same time to restrict the Greek domination on the region<sup>(1)</sup>.

Therefore, Turkey will be able to reach an agreement with Al-Saraj government in order to define its maritime boundaries, the purpose is that to confront pressure arising from the "Egyptian Group - Greek - Greek Cypriot and at the same time increase its economic influence for more than 190 thousand km, which will exceed the areas of Greece and Cyprus together<sup>(2)</sup>.

Not to mention that issue of an immigrant card was on the Turkish agendas that Turkey tries to achieve through its interference in the Libyan affairs, in order to exploit this issue through the pressure on Europe to take an advantage from the reconstruction contracts in Libya, moreover and the Mediterranean energy was also one of the main concerns of Turkey's decision maker<sup>(3)</sup>.

I.I.2. Turkish Strategic Motives in Libya.

The most important reasons that led Turkey to involve in Libya, from the perspective is the strategic interests that Turkey went to achieve it. As well as, one of the reasons that lead Turkey to interfere in the conflict in Libya, is to gain on political, security benefits and significant geopolitical location<sup>(1)</sup>. in an attempt to pressure Europe. And this can be achieved by using the card of illegal immigrants to pressure Europe<sup>(2)</sup>, on the grounds that Libya is currently the main gateway to their arrival in Europe; Note that Turkey used it before through the Syrian immigrants. Therefore, the issue of migrants is a strategic tool for Turkey to achieve its goals, and perhaps the most important of which is the effort to join the European Union.

Moreover, Turkish pressure on Europe to receive immigrants via opened its border for immigrants flood into Turkey and then into Europe, and at the same time Libya, strives to exploit of this illegal card in order to gain on advantages form Europe side<sup>(3)</sup>. It is for the purpose of facing criticisms of Turkey's policies by the members of European Council states, and possibly the most significant of these policies is Turkey's attempts to accomplish it is to explore natural gas, that implemented nearby the coast of Cyprus, indeed European countries have criticized these policies that practiced by Turkey and they declared their solidarity with Cyprus,<sup>(1)</sup>

It is not ignored that the strategic reasons that led Turkey to intervene in Libyan affair is that Turkey has a strategically for Europe and America, as it is a member of the "North Atlantic Treaty Organization", "but Turkey has faced challenges and threats by the member states of the above-mentioned organization After developing a strategic partnership between Turkey and Russh to divide the shferes of influence and ensure respective interests in Libya<sup>(2)</sup> this caused resentment and anger in these countries, especially the United States of America. Therefore, Turkey finds itself a sphere of influence on the western side of the Libyan territories, via its support for the (LNAG) led by Al-Sarraj and Turkey has also sought to maintain the Muslim "Brotherhood" as was one of its agandas in North Africa when its influence declined in some countries such as Egypt, Tunisia and Algeria,<sup>(1)</sup> that may make Turkey play an important role in political and economic decisions as well as use of this influence in confront or possibly negotiating with the neighboring countries of Libya.

The question arises here, to what extent that Turkey seeks to gain on strategy gains?

The reality is that there is a strategic purpose behind the Turkish involvement in Libya, as Turkey considers Libya part of the wider isolated areas in the eastern Mediterranean, as well as it is an important economic advantage that linked Turkey via Africa, indeed Turkey has empowered of establishing partnership with Africa<sup>(2)</sup>.

However, Turkey is looking for to gain on a position, in Libya as well as its support for armed groups<sup>(3)</sup> that Turkey has used them to enhance its presence in Libya,<sup>(4)</sup> so that it can participate in determining the future of this country, or at least benefit from potential construction contracts in the future. addition Turkey is trying to influence on neighboring countries, by gaining a foothold in a strategic and vital region as well.

Moreover, as Turkey takes into account that Libya, which considered as the largest oil reserves country in the African continent, is a subject of concern for Turkey, as Turkey is aware of Libyan oil investment by supporting Libya with military equipment<sup>(1)</sup>. Accordingly, the Libyan defense industries are receiving the attention of the Turkish government, as there are approximately $ 1.3 billion in the annual budget allocated to support the military industry in Libia . Therefore, achieving a balance between the conflicting forces on the Libyan stage is important for Ankara, in that the support of the forces loyal to the (LNAG) led by Al-Saraj, and whoever stands with it.

Conclusion:

Overall, Turkish military interference in the Libya affair had left serious consequences on Libya .The findings of this research reveals that there some reasons behind the Turkish interference in Libya. via its backing to the "LNAG" led by Fayeze al-Sarraj in a region considered to be a vital, strategic and oil-rich region in the world. that made recognized global and territorial attention especially by countries are opposing to the occupation such the U.S , European Union and Russia as well as it triggers some attitudes of the Arab countries for example Saudi Arabia and the UAE, as well as the Turkish interference was considered by those countries as an incompatible with their policies existing regimes .

The research findings show that there are economic, political and strategic benefits for Turkey as a result of its interference in Libya, not to mention that the protecting of Turkish interests in the Middle East region on the agendas of decision-maker.

This research shows that the Turkish interference in the Libyan might lead to the deterioration of the situation at the levels political and economic and it would make Libya a region of conflict rather it leads to stability in the region.
